AVEDA PRODUCTS PLANS SPECIAL EARTH DAY CELEBRATION

A representative from one of the international sponsors of Earth Day, Aveda Corporation, a manufacturer of aromatherapy products for hair, skin, body, and environment, will be Tuscaloosa Monday, April 23, for Shelton State Community College's celebration of Earth Day.

Aromatherapy is a scientific art which combines ancient traditions with current clinical research to create pure, distilled flower and plant essences. By creating distinct benefits to beautify and balance both body and mind, aromatherapy embraces the whole being for a soothing, revitalizing experience.

Aveda is fundamentally opposed to the use of synthetic, petroleum-based animal-derived and animal-tested products. The company advocates the use of natural and organic materials in an effort to create optimum synergy with nature.

At 9 a.m. on Monday, April 23, the Abner P. Neil Environmental Scholarship for Shelton State Community College will be officially established by Aveda Corporation and the Neil Corporation, one of Aveda's major distributors. This $800.00 scholarship will be awarded annually to a Shelton student majoring in cosmetology with a focus on esthetics (skin care) and is named for one of the founders of the Neil Corporation.

From 9:30-10 a.m. Christina Lowery of the Neil Corporation will teach a class on aromatherapy. Representatives from various local salons will also be available to assist with the class. The public is invited to attend the class and, according to Peggy Sexton, director of the college's cosmetology program, "it will be an opportunity to learn what natural beauty services can do for you."

From 10 a.m. -1 p.m., an array of natural beauty services will be available to guests of the college. Some of the services offered will be: facials; manicures; scalp treatments; hand and feet treatments; make-up applications, hair stylings. Services will be provided by Shelton students enrolled in the college's cosmetology program as well as representatives from several of the local salons. To schedule an appointment, call Shelton State Community College, 556-1720.
